

Course Outcome Guide (COG)

Approved 20 September 2012

Course:	NURS 229 Health Promotion & Psychosocial Nursing	Credits:	2	Instructor:	DNP Consortium Faculty
Course Description:	This course includes concepts related to the nursing care of individuals experiencing alterations in social and psychological functioning. Utilizing the nursing process the students will explore human needs of individuals with mental health alterations. Utilization of therapeutic communication techniques, use of self and cultural awareness is stressed. Emphasis is also placed on health promotion, health maintenance, and accident/illness prevention for diverse individuals across the lifespan.
Concepts and Issues	Process Skills	Assessment Tasks	Intended Outcomes
			Course	General Education or Program	Institutional
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Nursing Process Nursing Care of individuals experiencing alterations in social and psychological functioning. Communication techniques. Cultural awareness Health promotion, health maintenance, and accident/illness prevention. Community Health Nursing Practice 	Principles of therapeutic communication Legal/ethical responsibilities of caring Nursing care of individuals with mental illness Use of evidence based research involving psychosocial nursing care, health promotion, health maintenance, and accident/illness prevention activities. Teaching learning principles Management with organizing care for individuals	Class discussion Quizzes Exams ATI Community Health Nursing Exam ATI Mental Health Nursing Exam	The student will be able to: <ol style="list-style-type: none"> Analyze the principles of therapeutic communication for interaction with diverse individuals throughout the lifespan. Explain the legal/ethical responsibilities of caring for individuals with mental illness. Describe the use of the nursing process in providing nursing care to meet the health needs of the individuals with mental health disorders. 	The graduates from the DNP will be able to: <ol style="list-style-type: none"> Design the nursing process to provide nursing care in diverse settings to meet the human needs of individuals along the health-illness outcomes. Integrate various communication techniques in developing therapeutic relationships with individuals, families and members of the interdisciplinary team. Manage the legal

<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Diverse individuals across the lifespan. 			<ol style="list-style-type: none"> Analyze the teaching-learning principles to identify needs of the individual along the health illness continuum. Discuss the use of evidence based research as it relates to psychological nursing care and health promotion activities for individuals across the lifespan. Explain management principles utilized in organizing care for individuals with health disorders. 	and ethical scope of practice as an accountable member of the health care team providing leadership and management in the delivery of quality nursing care consistent with the associate degree registered nurse. <ol style="list-style-type: none"> Demonstrate professional behaviors as a member of the dynamic health care discipline of nursing applying concepts/lifelong learning. Construct teaching – learning principles in providing individuals and families with health care information and skills related to health promotion and maintenance. Integrate social, biological, behavioral and nursing sciences when providing evidence-based nursing care to diverse individuals across the lifespan.
--	--	--	---	---	--

--	--	--	--	--	--